

LANDSCAPE FUTURES IN THE
TWENTY-FIRST CENTURY

LANDSCAPE LEADERS IN AN INTERGENERATIONAL DIALOGUE

Panel discussion moderated by Prof. Theano S. Terkenli

THURSDAY 5TH
DECEMBER, 17:00 GMT

bit.ly/LandscapeFuturesLRG

landscape
research group

Landscape Futures in the Twenty-First Century

This timely event will explore how current global crises, including climate change, economic challenges, energy shifts, and social transformations, are leaving a profound and complex imprint on landscapes across the world. These crises are rapidly altering spatial organisation and management, putting landscapes under pressure from rapid land-use changes, extractive activities, and other forces that threaten public health, well-being, and the environment.

However, these challenges also provide opportunities to reimagine landscape stewardship and care in ways that could ensure a more sustainable future.

This event will bring together landscape experts from various disciplines and generations to exchange perspectives on the evolving role of landscape in human lives and decision-making.

The panel, moderated by LRG's newly appointed Chair, Professor Theano S. Terkenli, aims to foster interdisciplinary and international perspectives on landscape research, with a focus on both theoretical insights and practical solutions.

- Professor Marc Antrop, Emeritus Professor, University of Ghent
- Dr Margherita Cisani, University of Padova
- Professor Tim Ingold, Emeritus Professor, University of Aberdeen.
- Professor Teresa Pinto Correia, University of Évora and Director of MED
- Dr Amy Strecker, University College Dublin

Attendance can be both in person at 77 Wicklow Street, London and via Zoom.

